Mine the Texts of Early Christianity—in Latin and Greek

Ecclesiastical, Medieval, and Neo-Latin Sentences

Read theological, biblical, philosophical, and other texts while being introduced to some of the neologisms and new syntax of Ecclesiastical, Medieval, and Neo-Latin. Thorough notes make reading these selections possible and enjoyable for readers from any background.

The PERFECT companion to Wheelock’s Latin for readers especially interested in ecclesiastical Latin and as a classroom resource for all teachers who use Wheelock.

—Richard A. LaFleur

Reading the Gospel of St. Matthew in Greek: A Beginning
Norbert H. O. Duckwitz

Reading the Gospel of St. Matthew in Greek: A Beginning empowers students to read and appreciate the Gospel of Matthew and biblical Greek as a whole. The introduction presents a summary description of the alphabet, pronunciation, accents, and grammar, making simple and brief comparisons between English and Greek. The Greek text is accompanied by same-page vocabulary and notes, which allow for rapid reading, comprehension, and retention.

Engage Your Students & Bring Your Latin Alive!

Rusticatio Virginiana:
Rusticatio is a full-immersion Latin workshop offering high-energy conversation exercises and readings from Latin literature. In a supportive, intimidation-free environment, Rusticatio participants live together for seven days while they speak, read, write, cook and relax—all while communicating entirely in Latin. Two programs: July 2-9, 2014 or July 17-24, 2014

Pedagogy Rusticatio:
Pedagogy Rusticatio provides Latin teachers four full days of intensive introduction to the very best and most effective language teaching methods available. For 2014, we are delighted to offer a dynamic, hands-on introduction to Where Are Your Keys?, an exciting, innovative approach to language pedagogy that is both a powerful language-acquisition method and a dynamic language-learning game. July 10-15, 2014 (Between the two Rusticaciones)

POST-BACCALAUREATE PROGRAM AT THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM and MARY

Beginning in Fall 2014 the Department of Classical Studies at the College of William and Mary will offer a Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in Classical Studies. Our aim is to offer a flexible program for students who already have earned an undergraduate degree but who wish to pursue an intensive course of study in the Classical languages for graduate studies, teaching, or personal enrichment.

The Program features:
• Diverse and rigorous courses in Latin, Greek, and Classical Civilization to suit individual interests and needs.
• Close student-faculty interaction and the opportunity to study with distinguished teacher-scholars
• Competitive tuition rates
• Summer study abroad opportunities in Greece and Italy
• Opportunity to study at America’s second oldest college and one of only eight “Public Ivies” in the nation
• Historic campus in beautiful Williamsburg, Virginia, only an hour from Richmond, VA, and three hours from Washington, D.C.

For additional information, please visit our website at www.wm.edu/classical-post-bac or contact John Donahue, Chair, Department of Classical Studies (757-221-1930; jfdona@wm.edu).
All Friday evening events will be located at Downtown 301, located at 301 S. 2nd Street in Waco. Downtown 301 is only two blocks from the Hilton Waco. Members of the Local Committee will be at the front door of the hotel at 6 p.m. to assist in pointing out directions. For those with limited mobility and/or high heels, there will also be one chartered bus going from the front door of the Hilton Waco to and from Downtown 301, beginning at 6:00 p.m. and ending at 10:15 p.m. A map can be found on page 54 for directions.

CONQUER THE CAESAR SYLLABUS WITH NEW ANCILLARIES

Caesar’s Blood
Rose Williams

This historical novel draws on the ancient sources to tell the story of the Julio-Claudian dynasty and what it meant to be born into that famous family. Like a modern day Suetonius, Texan Williams crafts speeches and conversations for these historical figures as they respond to the events of their own lives and those of the empire.

Julius Caesar: Master of Surprise
Rose Williams

Reviled and admired, Julius Caesar significantly impacted the world. This succinct yet comprehensive text based on ancient sources demonstrates how Caesar surprised his allies and foes with his decisions and actions. This small book will prove a major boon to students understanding the context of Caesar's military career and his writings.

SOCRATION OR PHILODEMUS?

CATULLUS 47 AND PROSOPOGRAPHICAL EXCESS
Susan O. Shapiro

Abstract: Since 1908, scholars have been fascinated by the possibility that the name Socration in Catullus’ poem 47 might be a pseudonym for the Greek poet and Epicurean philosopher, Philodemus. This article first traces the history of the identification of Socration with Philodemus, placing it within the context of late nineteenth and early twentieth century Catullan scholarship; the context of the Catullroman helps to explain why the identification became so popular. The article then reviews the arguments that have been used to uphold the identification, concluding that there is no credible evidence to support it.

VIRGIL’S SALIAN HYMN TO HERCULES
John F. Miller

Abstract: The lengthy ceremonies in Hercules’ honor that Evander and his Arcadians perform at the prehistoric Ara Maxima in Pallanteum reach a climax with the hymn that the Salian priests sing at Aeneid 8.285–305. This paper analyzes that carmen, with attention to hymnic structure, intertextuality, and the larger contexts of Virgil’s epic narrative, Roman religion, and Augustan culture. The Salian hymn to Hercules is a remarkable passage, the only hymnic text in the Aeneid, and, as far as I know, the first hymn in Latin heroic epic. Complementing this innovation are other striking aspects, all interrelated. Virgil here stages a version of a traditional cultic song—the Salian Hymn—which was said to be unintelligible in his own day. His Carmen Saliare is itself extraordinary in formal terms. That Salii honor Hercules at Rome likewise surprises. Moreover, in reflecting upon the significance of Salian hymnody in contemporary Rome, Virgil simultaneously highlights the Augustan dimension of Evander’s festival for Hercules.

SHADOW OF A DOUBT: A PHANTOM CAESURA IN HORACE ODES 4.14
Bob Cowan

Abstract: In his Odes, Horace routinely places a caesura after the fifth syllable of his Alcaic hendecasyllables. Four of the exceptions to this rule have been shown to be expressive, but the fifth, at 4.14.17, has never been adequately accounted for. The expectation of such a caesura encourages the reader or listener to (mis)hear the word incerta in the phrase in certamine Martio. The shadow of this word may generate a feeling of doubt about the surrounding panegyric, or its disambiguation may dramatize the elimination of such doubt. The word incerta is also a self-reflexive signal of its own ambiguous status.

FIGURING (OUT) THE AVARUS: ETHICS, AESTHETICS AND COUNTER-AESTHETICS IN HORACE, SATIRE 1.1
Gottfried Mader

Abstract: Horace in Satire 1.1 stakes out a Callimachean-neoteric identity, typically using ethical themes to double as programmatic statements on aesthetics. The avarus, conversely, as symmetrical counter-image of the satiric speaker, is figured in “counter-aesthetic” categories. Ethical value and “anti-value” are aligned to aesthetics and “counter-aesthetics;” the miser’s perversion is tracked in an ironically self-deconstructing “aesthetic” discourse (iuuat, pulchrum, suaue, delectat, gaudere tabellis) and in a number of other gestures that recognizably refract an original poetological reference. The resulting tension humorously punctures his misguided logic and confronts his “parallel universe” with the real world.

CANNIBALIZING OVID: ALLUSION, STORYTELLING AND DECEPTION IN JUVENAL 15

Kristen Ehrhardt

Abstract: Satire 15 is not a straightforward narrative about Egyptian practices of cannibalism, but a stylized, rhetorical exercise in intertextuality. Juvenal undermines his narratorial authority through an ongoing engagement with Ovid’s Metamorphoses. Juvenal hints that storytellers may sometimes be deceitful, and in turn he seems to embrace this role. Throughout the satire, intertextuality takes the place of proof as both exempla and argumentation are corroborated by means of Ovidian allusion. As a result, the cannibalization at the core of the satire may be read as analogous to Juvenal’s literary duplicity.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF CULTURE IN PHILOSTRATUS’ LIFE OF APOLLONIUS OF TYANA

Roshan Abraham

Abstract: While the travel narrative in Philostratus’ Life of Apollonius of Tyana has been the subject of much scholarly commentary, little has been said about the geography created by those travels. This paper examines the representation of Paraca, Greece, and Rome to demonstrate how Philostratus reverses the traditional Greek view of center and periphery. In his figuration, the extreme geographic periphery of Paraca becomes the center of civilization, whereas the traditional center of Rome is reconceptualized as a dangerous periphery. This reversal supports Philostratus’ larger commentary on the loss of self-knowledge in the Greek world and its consequences.

The "saucer pyres" of the Athenian Agora remained a mystery for over 70 years, until Professor Susan I. Rotroff turned her attention to these deposits 10 years ago. Each deposit consisted of a shallow pit, its floor sometimes marked by heavy burning, with a votive deposit of pottery and fragments of burnt bone, ash, and charcoal. Rotroff investigates the nature of the saucer pyre sacrifices, taking into account the contents of the pyres, their spatial distribution, and their relationship to buildings around the Agora and elsewhere, arriving at a startling conclusion.

“Aristotle and Black Drama invites us to revise existing genealogies of black theater and offers the provocative idea of classical theory of drama as a handmaiden for the theater of civil disobedience.”

—EMILY GREENWOOD, Professor of Classics, Yale University
Latin for the New Millennium provides a fusion approach to Latin combining the best practices of the reading method, the traditional grammar approach, and a literary-rich vocabulary that will ensure a smooth transition to upper-level courses. With full color images that teach and essays on history, mythology, and more, LNM keeps students engaged and excited about the ancient world. Stop by the B-C booth to talk to an editor about the series and pick up a complimentary 32-page brochure.

*While supplies last. All other books are 20% off. All books, including LNM, can be ordered at 20% off with conference discount code. Stop by the booth for details.
