

From Generation unto Generation

Although I am of the older generation in the mentoring scheme, I remember vividly my mentor, Dorothy Keith. Her greatest contribution to my career was telling me that professional involvement was essential. She insisted that participation in JCL and ACL were mandatory and advised participation in CAMWS and APA if possible. Of course, she was right. Through these organizations I met many master teachers, attended helpful workshops, and received support from many more mentors (like Owen Cramer). My students used to say, "You know everyone in Classics." I would reply, "We are a supportive group, not a competitive group. Instructors at all levels help each other."
