

Teaching Portfolios for Secondary School Positions

A teaching portfolio is a valuable resource for teachers in the market for jobs at primary and secondary school. A well-constructed portfolio that makes your vision of teaching and learning in the Latin classroom come alive to the hiring committee will allow you to stand out as a candidate. Teaching portfolios are of value to in-service teachers as well, documenting more than can be captured on a traditional curriculum vitae. The process of selecting materials for inclusion and creating the accompanying narrative encourages the teacher to revisit their teaching philosophy, which is fluid and can change over time. This presentation will examine the elements of a teaching portfolio that have the most impact on potential employers.
