

Best Practices from an Editor's Perspective

In this presentation, I will discuss best practices for graduate students who would like to publish their first article. I will draw from my experience working with graduate student submissions and discuss what is best to do and not to do when drafting an article for publication or revising an existing term paper. I will also present statistics of acceptances, rejections, and R&Rs for the journal I edit..