

Classical Reception in Popular Music

This roundtable seeks to open up discussion of a growing area of Classical Reception Studies: the use of the ancient Greco-Roman world in contemporary popular music. Participants will consider the genres and artists that feature the ancient world and assess interest in forming a working group dedicated to the research of these areas of study. Participants are encouraged to share their favorite examples and critical approaches to Classical reception in pop music.