

Graduate School Application Processes

Join us for an informal conversation about graduate school applications. The focus of this round-table is to make the application process for graduate schools as accessible and easy to navigate as possible. While the round-table will be in an open question format, some key points we hope to hit are where to find programs and applications, what application materials might be required by programs, and general advice on finding the best program for a student. This round-table is open to undergraduate students, graduate students, and scholars at all points in their careers.
